

INTERNATIONAL GEOGRAPHICAL UNION COMMISSION ON GENDER AND GEOGRAPHY

Newsletter Number 41

November, 2008

Dear Commission Members

This is the first contact I have had with some of you so I would like to start by saying thank you to those who nominated and supported me to be Chair of the IGU Commission on Gender and Geography for the period 2008-2012. I feel honored to be part of what must surely be one of the most active and productive Commissions of the IGU and would like to assure you all that I will do my utmost to make the next four years as successful and exciting as the past years of the Commission's activities.

Thanks to Tovi Fenster

Before updating you on news and upcoming events I want to say thanks again to Professor Tovi Fenster – Chair from 2004-2008. During this time we had six meetings (Barcelona, Hamilton, Brisbane, Zurich, Taipei and Tunis), produced several special issues in Journals such as Belgeo and Geographica Helvetica and extended further our networks beyond Anglo-American spaces. This success is due to the dedicated work of Commission members but also to Tovi's strong leadership. We all very much appreciate this.

Congratulations to Ruth Fincher

Professor Ruth Fincher, University of Melbourne, was elected at the IGU Congress in Tunis, Tunisia as one of seven new Vice-Presidents (VPs) of the IGU. It is still to be decided which VPs will be responsible for which Commissions. As a past chair of the Commission on Gender and Geography we are delighted that Ruth has been appointed to this position and would like to wish her all the best in her new role.

Commission to Meet in Hungary and Romania, May 22-24, 2009

Under the leadership of Judit Timár (Hungarian Academy of Sciences) and Sorina Voiculescu (University of West Timisoara (Romania)) the Commission will sponsor a conference on Post-Socialism, Neo-Liberalism: Old and New Gendered Societies and Policies in Szeged, Hungary and Timisoara, Romania. The conference will be interdisciplinary with the goal of providing a platform for feminist critical evaluation of post-socialism and neoliberalism, marking the 20th anniversary of the East Central European political changes in 1989. It further aims to understand women's and men's everyday experiences and reveal the particular geographies of the gender dimensions of these models. This meeting marks the first opportunity for the Commission to hold a sustained event in the region since its sessions at the IGU Regional Conference in Prague in 1992. The conference will include scholarly papers and discussion sessions and the opportunity for a discussion with members of the Association for the Promotion of Women in Romania (APoWeR) which was instrumental in developing a proposal that led to passage of the 2003 Romanian law on domestic violence.

Full details of the themes and call for papers and the registration form were recently sent to members of the Commission's mailing list and will be followed up separate mailings from this newsletter. Further information is also available from Judit Timár (timarj@rkk.hu) or Sorina Voiculescu (vsorina@cbg.uvt.ro).

The Gender and Geography Commission Activities at the Tunis IGC, August, 12-15, 2008

The Gender and Geography Commission was very active at the Tunis IGC in terms of the number of sessions organized and the high level of attendance. We organized six sessions and were second in terms of the number of sessions (Geographical Education had 12). The main theme of the Commission's sessions was: Gendered Perspectives: Connecting Across Difference. The sessions included topics such as: Negotiating Differences in Urban Spaces; Gendered Experiences of Labor; Gender, Poverty and Policies; Gendered Mobilities; Multiple Dimensions of Gender Relations. The opening session was devoted to Gendered Perspectives after 20 Years: Connecting Across Difference, organized in honor of Janet Momsen's contribution to the field of gender and geography. All sessions were well attended with many new members joining our listserve. In addition, the Commission offered a half-day fieldtrip under the leadership of Prof. Lasta Zohra. We visited two places which represented some of the activities for women in Tunisia. The first, CREDIF – An Active and Innovative Center for Women's Promotion. This public institution is under the authority of the Ministry of Women and Family Affairs. We visited the Center's documentation center and met some of the Center's administrators. The group then visited women's public housing in Tunis. It consists of three blocks of apartments designed for young single women who come to study or work in Tunis from remote areas or the outskirts of Tunis. The buildings are run and maintained by the Government. We met the managers of the complex and several women who live there including a lawyer and woman employed in financial services, and also toured one section of the apartments. I would like to thank Prof. Ali Toumi for his help in organizing the sessions and the field trip.

IGU Commission on Gender and Geography Collaborates with the Commission on the Dynamics of Economic Spaces

The Gender Commission was pleased to have the collaboration of the IGU Commission on the Dynamics of Economic Spaces which included two sessions on gender themes in its recent symposium “The New Worlds of Work: Multiscalar Dynamics of New Economic Spaces” held in Barcelona, August 5-8, 2008. Maria Dolors Garcia Ramon and Toni Tulla served as representative of the Gender Commission planning the program. Eight gender papers were presented by participants from India, Japan, the Philippines, Spain, the United Kingdom and the US. Themes ranged from international labour migration of single Japanese women to the enterprising spirit of UK business women and the “gendered” homes in the global fishing industry of India. Richard LeHeron, Chair of the Commission on the Dynamics of Economic Spaces commented that he found the gender papers “contributed hugely to the intellectual stimulation and work of the conference.” We look forward to future collaborations with other Commissions.

Commission’s Web Site

We appreciate that Joos Droogleever Fortuijn (University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands) continues to maintain the Commission’s website (<http://www2.fmg.uva.nl/igugender>). Latest additions to the site are the Commission’s Activity Report 2004-2008 submitted to the IGU Executive Committee, a report on the conference on Gender and Transnationalism, hosted by Lan-Hung Nora Chiang at National Taiwan University, November, 2007 and “Connecting People, Places and Ideas: Reflections on the History of the IGU Commission on Gender and Geography” by Janice Monk (University of Arizona, USA). The history has also been sent to the IGU Archives at the Home of Geography in Rome and was commended as a model for other Commissions by IGU President, Ronald Abler.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Maria Prats (Autonomous University of Barcelona) was a visiting research fellow at the Department of Geography at the University of Reading (UK) for three months supported by funding from the Catalan government. Invited by Louise Holt she has been working with several members of the human geography research group to bring together her interests in gender, children and Africa and to plan future research in those fields.

Congratulations to Shahnaz Huq Hussain who has been elected as Dean of the newly created Faculty of Earth and Environmental Sciences Faculty at the University of Dhaka, Bangladesh.

Polly Vauquiline has recently completed her PhD at North Eastern Hills University, Shillong, India. Her research addresses gender-related crimes in Greater Guwhati urban areas. We congratulate her on this accomplishment.

Sylvia Chant (London School of Economics, UK) and Monica Budowski will be teaching an intensive short course on “Cities, Poverty and Gender” at the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, Autumn 2008. For further information see (http://www.gendercampus.ch/projects/cooperation_gstudies/Lists/VLV/DispFormD.aspx?ID=178).

Congratulations to Linda McDowell (Oxford University, UK) who was awarded the 2008 Victoria Medal from the Royal Geographical Society for her contributions to feminist geography.

The conference “Mining Gender and Sustainable Livelihoods”, co-organized by Kuntala Lahiri-Dutt and sponsored by the Australian National University and the World Bank was held in Canberra, November 6-7, 2008. Janet Momsen (UK) was a keynote speaker. (see <http://empoweringcommunities.anu.edu.au/>)

Congratulations to Pia Carrasco who has completed her doctoral dissertation at the Institut national de la recherche scientifique (Montreal, Canada). Her project addressed “Théorie et pratique de l’approche de genre. Politique du logement social et stratégies des femmes à La Pintana” (Chile). (Gender-based Approaches in Theory and Practice: Social Housing Policy and Women’s Strategies in La Pintana (Chile). The study is based on interviews with individuals working in “urban” professions as well as with residents of social housing in a working-class neighborhood in Santiago, highlighting the importance of including potential residents targeted by policies.

Five sessions on gender were organized by the Women and Geography Study Group at the August conference of the Royal Geographical Society/Institute of British Geographers. Themes included issues of care, materialities of gender and place, theorizing life transitions, gender relations and economic migrations, and a session on postgraduate students’ research.

Saraswati Raju has been appointed Honorary Director, Women Studies Program in Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi (India).. Her tenure is for two years starting August, 2008. She also reports that the University can host a short-term visit (for example, one week or so) of a scholar in geography (gender or other subfields). International airfare cannot be covered, but there is the possibility of reimbursing internal travel and local hospitality including accommodation on campus. For further information, contact her at saraswati_raju@hotmail.com or saras@mail.jnu.ac.in

Two visiting feminist geographers will soon be presenting in Barcelona. In November, Linda Peake (York University, Toronto) will speak at the Societat Catalana de Geografia and in December, Elena dell’Agnese (Italy) will lecture at the Autonomous University of Barcelona.

Alison Blunt (Queen Mary University, UK) reports a new website, <http://www.gendersite.org>, is a comprehensive, cross-disciplinary database of bibliographic references, policy documents, and web resources relating to issues around gender and the built environment. Standing alongside it are a series of case studies highlighting those issues and relating directly to references included in the database. The aim is to continue updating and expanding the resource.. The project was developed as part of a program designed to gather together existing academic research across the social sciences, gender studies, architecture and planning, and make it readily accessible, in one location, to practitioners and professionals working in the field of the built environment. For academics and students it will also provide a valuable resource for teaching and further research, raising awareness of the work that has already been done within different disciplines, and pointing the way forward for new work to be done in the future.

Thanks to Anindita Datta (Department of Geography, Delhi School of Economics, India) who has greatly expanded the Commission's connections to geographers working on gender in India.

Congratulations to Irén Kukorelli Szörényine who has been appointed to the prestigious position of professor at the newly established Széchenyi University in Győr (Hungary) while continuing her work at the Regional Research Center in Győr.

Mondira Dutta of the Central Asian Studies Division in the School of International Studies, Jawaharlal University (New Delhi, India) is serving as chair of the university's Gender Sensitisation Committee against Sexual Harassment. The Committee is organizing street plays and discussion groups on campus to raise awareness among students. Mondira has conducted an array of research projects on women's work and child labor issues, in India and Afghanistan.

Congratulations to Tovi Fenster (University of Tel Aviv, Israel) on her promotion to Professor. She is also serving as Chair of Women's Studies.

Gina Porter (Durham University, UK) is working to encourage development specialists to take more interest in gendered mobility/transport issues (see her article below). She also has a research project in progress on children's mobility in three African countries with a very strong gender component, working with collaborators from the University of Cape Coast, Ghana; University of Malawi and CSIR, Pretoria). Janet Townsend and Nina Laurie are on the UK steering group. Details of the project are available on the website: www.dur.ac.uk/child.mobility/

Feministische Geo-Rundmail 37 (May 2008) features research on sexuality and space. Noting that this theme has been neglected in German-language geography, Sandra Jasper and Jenny Künkel have compiled a summary of current research, dissertation, and habilitation projects in geography, planning, and related social sciences that address spatial questions. Themes include studies of queer perspectives, diverse sexualities, and issues related to prostitution. They include work on immigrant and minority communities. Also offered are references to previously published work in English. To join the mailing list contact Michaela Schier (schier@dji.de)

The University of Cambridge (UK) has established the Centre of Gender Studies this year within the Geography Department. It has a full time director, Dr Jude Brown (a sociologist of work, and law), and is establishing a MPhil programme in gender studies to begin in October 2009. The Centre is an international locus for front-line gender research and is made up of a wide community of academics interested in gender from across the disciplines. It runs a series of events, including a multi-disciplinary Gender Research Seminar, Symposia and a number of Public Lectures. In 2008-9, Catharine MacKinnon and Judith Butler will be featured speakers. Further details can be found on: <<http://www.gender.cam.ac.uk/>>
