KINESIOLOGY 702  Individual Study in Selected Topics

Selected topics are assigned according to student research interests and needs. Usually KIN 702 is undertaken by a student with such assignment given by the supervisor; however, students may undertake individual studies with other graduate faculty members and associate members of the Kinesiology Department. Determination of the topics is done in consultation with the student’s supervisor.

KINESIOLOGY 713  Directed readings in Kinesiology

KIN 713 is for PhD candidates only and is designed as an advanced reading course in an area of Kinesiology related to performance in healthy individuals. A course outline must be submitted to the Associate Chair, Graduate Studies, in the Department of Kinesiology.

KINESIOLOGY 714  Directed readings in Kinesiology, Special Populations

KIN 714 is for PhD candidates only and is designed as an advanced reading course in an area of Kinesiology related to performance in individuals from special populations. Candidates will be required to prepare a research grant proposal as part of the evaluation in this course. An outline must be submitted to the Associate Chair, Graduate Studies, in the Department of Kinesiology.